Dear Sally,

I am writing to extend heartfelt thanks from all the team here for The Nineveh Charitable Trust's very kind and generous gift of £5,000 to enable less privileged children to stay with us on our farms this academic year. Your grant will help to ensure children can escape their busy cities and large towns and spend a magical week with us.

As you know, we work with children living in some of the most densely populated areas of the UK, who are facing multiple challenges in their lives. Your funding will allow them to step outside of the city, learn new skills, grow their confidence and ambition, and be braver, stronger, and more resilient.

I have attached our newly published Impact Report which I hope you find really inspiring but I also wanted to share some further feedback we have received from schools who visited us recently and some lovely, uplifting photos of groups who have stayed with us so far this year.

"One child is an elective mute at school, and he is starting to talk to other children and all the staff who were with him at the farm." Teacher, Nelson Mandela Primary School, Birmingham

"Children who do not thrive in the classroom setting have embraced every opportunity. Their confidence and self-esteem has grown beyond measure. All children have faced personal challenges and have overcome barriers. They will transfer these skills into the outside world."
Teacher, St Peter's Church of England Primary School, London

"My week on the farm will encourage me to think more about where my food comes from. I think that it will encourage me to spend more time playing outside and looking at wildlife than playing on electronics." Pupil, Whetstone Field Primary, Walsall

This opportunity exists for children because of our amazing supporters, and we are immensely grateful for your trust's support. Thank you for helping to provide a life-enhancing and in some cases even life-changing experience for these children at a time when it is never more needed.

With warmest wishes,
