

Sally Hutchinson,
The Nineveh Trust

11th February 2026

Dear Sally,

The Nineveh Trust very generously awarded Young Epilepsy a grant of £3,500 towards the Forest School and Woodland Learning area for students at St Piers, aged 4-25, with complex learning needs.

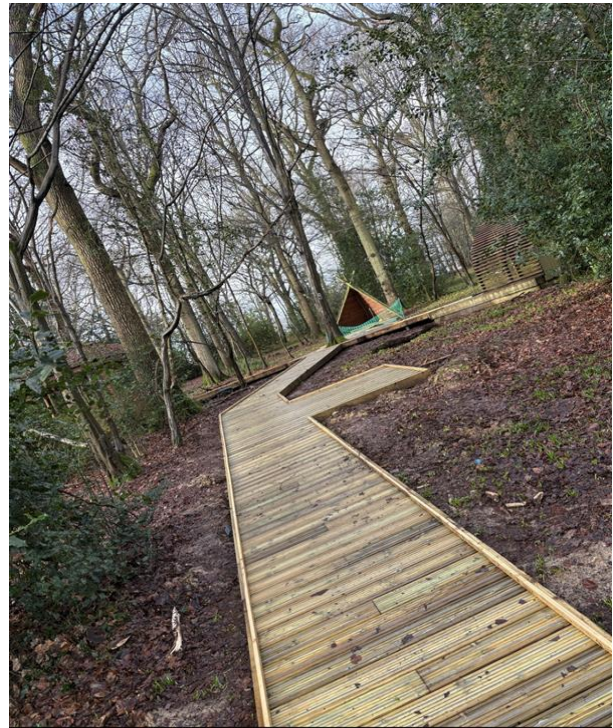

I am writing to report that we have completed the project, and the wooden walkways have been successfully updated. We are so pleased with the results, and I have included some photos.

Updating the walkways means they are now safe and accessible to all students, even those with the most profound mobility needs and those who use wheelchairs. Forest School and Woodland learning is so important and beneficial to our students. It has such a positive impact on their health, wellbeing and physical and sensory development and allows them to experience activity through methods which are not bound by the restrictions of language.

Students taking part in Forest School and Woodland Learning develop other important key skills within their learner journey, including communication, language, cognition and creativity and all 204 students at St Piers can now participate.

On behalf of everyone at Young Epilepsy and St Piers, thank you so much for your generous grant towards this project.

Please do get in touch if you require any further information.

Kind Regards,

Caroline Holder
